MAYORALTY FIGHT IN NEW YORK GETS WARM

Henry George, Jr., Takes a Hand---Recalls Old Story of His Father's Candidacy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Taken from a graveyard of forgotten campaigns, a political skeleton, covered with the dust of twenty-three years, was brought forth and rattled in New York tonight, adding intensely in the long-cornered struggle for the mayoralty of Greater New York, a new chapter sought by William J. Gaynor, Democrat; William R. Hearst, Independent; and Otto T. Bannard, Republican. It had to do with the political career of William M. Ivins, Hearst's old Republican supporter, albeit opponent four years ago.

printed in his biography of his father as having been made by the latter just before his death. It read: "Before my nomination had formally taken place in 1886, I received a request from Mr. William M. Ivins, then chamberlain of the city, and a close personal friend and representative of Mr. George, to privately meet him. I did so, at Seigworth's, on LaFayette place; we sat down in a private room, unattended, and smoked some cigars together. Mr. Ivins insisted that I could not possibly be elected mayor of New York, no matter how many people might vote for me; that the men who voted knew nothing of the real forces that dominated New York. He said that I could not possibly be counted in. He offered on behalf of Tammany Hall and the county Democracy that if I would refuse the nomination for mayor they would run me for Congress, select a city district in which nomination was equivalent to election; that I should be at no expense whatever, but might go

ONE PERSON KILLED AND FIFTEEN INJURED

NEW YORK CENTRAL EXPRESS THROWN BY BROKEN RAIL.

President Brown and W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Were on the Train, But Not Injured.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 18.—One passenger was killed and fifteen others were injured when the rear section of train No. 28, the Western express, on the New York Central railroad, was wrecked at Rhinebeck early Sunday.

President Brown, of the New York Central, was on board the train, but was not injured.

With President Brown were W. H. Newman, former president of the road, and W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., a director, all returning from an inspection of the company's lines. Just south of the Rhinebeck station the eight cars of the train were thrown from the track by a broken rail.

The smoker and one of the day coaches rolled over on their sides, and James Krakoskie, a peddler, 21 years old, of New York, was hurled through a window and crushed to death when the car fell on its side. The injured were occupants of either the smoker or the day coach, but as their hurts were not serious, they continued on to New York on a special train.

In the wreckage Moses Wright, the engineer, found a woman with five children, one a baby, pinned under a seat. Before he could help her a number of excited men tried to take the torch away from him to look for articles they had lost. The engineer drove them back under threats, and extricated the woman, whose arm was torn, but not broken.

President Brown himself directed the removal of the injured passengers and the work of clearing away the track.

to Europe or anywhere I wished and when I came back should receive a certificate of election to the House of Representatives. I said to him finally: 'You tell me I cannot possibly get the office. Why then if I cannot possibly get the office, do you want me to withdraw?' His reply was: 'You cannot get elected but your running will raise hell.' I said: 'You have relieved me of embarrassment. I do not want the responsibility and the work of the office of mayor of New York, but I do want to raise hell. I am decided and will run.'

Mr. Ivins in reply issued a statement last night in which he said:

"In 1897, I denied that I had ever offered Mr. George a nomination in behalf of Tammany Hall, and I also denied that any such conversation as that here given took place between us; I still deny it. Mr. George is dead, and I care to say nothing further of the matter. Even the courts will not permit one to testify to a conversation with parties deceased.

"It will be noted that Mr. George does not repeat the accusation which was made yesterday that I attempted to bribe his father."

Meeting Tuesday Night.

The Alachua County School Improvement Association was organized last week, and in the course of business transacted it was decided to hold a rally at the court house on Tuesday evening, Oct. 19, at 7:30 o'clock.

Several speakers of prominence have been invited to speak on that occasion and it is hoped that a large crowd will be present. Among the speakers invited are President Murphy, Dr. Thackston and Prof. Cassels.

GUARANTEE BANK LAW IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Governor Shallenberger of Nebraska Criticizes Federal Court For So Deciding State Law.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 18.—In a statement on the action of the two Federal judges, who Saturday declared the Nebraska bank guaranty law unconstitutional, Governor Shallenberger deplores the ruling as smacking, he says, of partisanship and what he believes is a distinct blow at remedial State legislation. Governor Shallenberger also declares that the reference of the case to the Federal instead of the State Judiciary is a usurpation of power. He says in part:

"The decision is exactly what those who for partisan or selfish reasons are opposed to and effective guaranty of deposits law desired. It goes to the very heart of the question and denies the right of the State to require the banks, which exist by virtue of their charters, to pay a certain tax to create a guaranty fund or to prescribe a form and manner under which the banking business shall be conducted. It appears to leave banking no more a matter for public legislation or litigation than the grocery or butcher business.

"The law which has been set aside by the decree of the court was fraught with great benefit to the people. I am sure that the people desired the legislation and were anxious to see it put into actual practice. One result of the nullification of legislation by the courts would be to intensify the desire and determination that our State supreme court shall not be longer constituted wholly of members of one political party. It might be noted in passing that the distinguished Democrat of this State who was made a federal judge by a revered Republican, President was not called into judgment upon the case.

"The overthrow of legislative enactments, by interference by the executive, by the use of patronage or the veto power, and by the nullification of laws by our courts, has steadily tended to degrade the power of the legislative branch of our Government and to make it a thing for politicians and lobbyists to play with."

Early Blaze Mended.

The fire department was called to Box 73, located at the corner of Alachua and Roper avenues, on Monday morning, when it was found that the cottage owned by James Dolg had been in flames, but was extinguished without water having to be placed on the building. A fine run was made by the fire ladders, who responded with their usual promptness.

Spanish Embassy Moved Upon By Mob With Red Flag

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The red flag was raised in London Sunday afternoon and a large mob moved upon the Spanish embassy to make a demonstration of its disapproval of the execution of Prof. Francisco Ferrer, the convicted revolutionist, at Barcelona a few days ago.

Several bodies of police drove off the crowds. While no blood was shed considerable excitement and uneasiness pervaded the neighborhood. The groans and hootings were plainly heard in the embassy and at Buckingham palace nearby.

The trouble began with a mass meeting in Trafalgar square, which was organized by several Socialist and labor bodies.

A black-bordered banner was raised with big letters that could be read from afar: "To hell with the murderer Alfonso."

A telegram was read from the Countess of Warwick saying:

"No words are too strong to express Europe's horror at the murder of Ferrer."

Victor Grayson of Manchester, the Socialist member, capped the climax of the speeches by declaring that if the head of every king of Europe was torn from his body it would not pay half the price of Ferrer's life. He called the Russian emperor "a dirty monster," and said that King Edward, who could have prevented the execution, was responsible for whatever might happen in England as a result of it. He demanded the expulsion of the Spanish ambassador.

Army Officers Have to Refund Pay to Government

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—About two hundred army officers have been called on by the War Department to refund to the treasury sums of money varying in amount from $166 to $2,000, being the pay received by them for exercising higher command than their actual rank in the war with Spain, and later in the Philippines. This was apparently authorized by an interpretation of the law which provided that an officer should receive the pay of the grade of the duties of which in actual operations he was engaged in performing. This situation found captains in command of battalions and majors and lieutenant colonels in command of regiments. The unexpected demand from the Treasury Department has operated as hardship upon the officers who have received this notice after so many years. They find there is no appeal from the decision, and as they are not responsible for the misinterpretation of the law or the misapplication of the statutes they think it would be proper to seek legislation authorizing them to retain the money which they were considered ten or more years ago as having fairly earned and to which they were legally entitled. There might be some difficulty in obtaining an appropriation if it required a new disbursement of money, but the situation can be fully met by inserting in the army appropriation act a clause which will protect the army officers as adversely affected.

Many Improvements Are Being Made at White House

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Congress apart thousands of dollars a year for the maintenance and repairs at the White House. The latter cost quite as much as the former, due to the fact that the house is visited yearly by great throngs of people who leave behind them trails of wear and tear and demands prompt attention. The usual house-cleaning and repairing days take place while the President and his family are absent for the summer, and this work for the current season is now drawing rapidly to a close. It is expected that the house and grounds and the enlarged executive offices will be in readiness for occupancy by the time Mrs. Taft returns to Washington from Beverly, but the latter part of this month. Certainly everything will be in first-class condition by the time the President returns, a month later. The President has approved a plan to finish the interior of his private office in the enlarged executive building with wood grown in the Philippines. The parquet flooring of the office will be of Tuscan-Calao wood, dark green in color, which grows abundantly in the islands. The furniture in the President's office will be covered with the skin of the carabao, or Philippine buffalo, brought from the Philippines for this especially. So much for the President's good will for the little brown men.

The White House has been given a new coat of paint during the summer, prior to which several coats of the old paint were carefully removed. The building has never presented a cleaner and more inviting appearance than at present. Inside, the green room has been redecorated, the furniture reupholstered and the woodwork repainted. All the other parlors have been gone over carefully and put in first-class condition for the return of the Presidential family, but no radical changes have been made in either furniture or decorations.

As a whole, however, the interior will present a most attractive appearance, and this will last pretty well through the social season, which will begin early in the winter. Mrs. Taft, while she will take things more philosophically than she did last season, has invited her sister to help her in receiving, and plans are under way to make the Tafts' first winter in the White House memorable socially. This will be the easier because of Mrs. Taft's fondness for social affairs, and her finely developed musical and artistic tastes.

Miss Thomas Loses Home and Contents at Orlando

ORLANDO, Oct. 18.—Fire broke out in the kitchen of a two-story house belonging to Miss Thomas, on West Central avenue, this morning at 5 o'clock and burned the house to the ground with its entire contents. Miss Thomas is an elderly maiden lady who lives alone. She started a fire in her cook stove and put in a stick of wood so long that she could not see the door. While she was at the front yard and walk, the burning wood fell on the floor and started a big blaze. The alarm was sent in, but the house was so far away that the fire department could not reach it in time to save it.

Every single bit of household goods and furniture was consumed also. There was no insurance on either house or goods and Miss Thomas is left nearly destitute. There is talk of raising a fund to assist her in building a new home.

It is nearly a thousand feet from the last fire plug to the lot where the house stood and the fire department was at a great disadvantage on this account.

SAN ANTONIO GAVE TAFT BIG WELCOME

STREETS LINED WITH PEOPLE TO RECEIVE THE PRESIDENT.

Went to Fort Sam Houston and Accepts Chapel Erected by Citizens of San Antonio.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 18.—The President's travels brought him to the far South Sunday. After 21 hours of continuous journeying from El Paso, he arrived here at 7:30 p. m. and despite the fact that it was Sunday night, was given a cheering welcome. A big crowd was gathered at the station and the streets leading from the depot to the St. Anthony Hotel were lined with people.

After being received by the city officials, the President was driven to the hotel with an escort of cavalry, and later in the evening proceeded to Fort Sam Houston, where he assisted in the dedication and accepted on behalf of the Government, the chapel which has been erected at the famous old army post by the citizens of San Antonio.

To Lay Cornerstone.

Monday morning the President helped to put in place the cornerstone of the nearly completed chapel, reviewed the troops stationed at Fort Sam Houston, and, returning to the city made an outdoor address to the people from a grandstand in Alamo plaza.

During the afternoon he left for Gregory, Texas, near Corpus Christi, to spend four days on the ranch of his brother, Charles P. Taft. The latter passed through here for the ranch to prepare a welcome for the President.

The President's train passed through the thinly settled western part of the State, and made but few stops.

At Del Rio, Sanderson and one or two other places, the President made brief speeches to the depot throngs, which were made up of Mexicans, residents of the community, and farmers who had driven many miles in their best "Sunday-go-to-meeting" clothes.

Through Cotton Fields.

The sage brush and cactus of the farther west reaches of the State gave way as the day advanced to mesquite bushes and finally to the pasture lands and cotton fields, for which the State is famous. In some of the fields the fleecy staple was breaking in white puffs from the bolls. The President, at the Pecos river, passed over what is declared to be the highest railway bridge in the world. The river runs in a rocky canon, 325 feet below the rails. The wind was blowing a gale as the President's train passed over the slender steel structure, and the engineer ran at a veritable snail's pace.

AN UNUSUAL OFFER.

I have nothing in my millinery department that is not fresh from the importers in the last six weeks, and with the reputation I possess for always having the latest styles, everyone who purchases at this unusual low sale can rest assured that they are getting the best and latest in hats. I shall be pleased to have a call from you during the season. Mrs. F. T. McCormick, west side of square, next to Gainesville Hardware Company.

Dr. Kennedy's Auto Trip.

Five days, seven hours and forty-five minutes, was the actual time of the recent trip of Dr. S. R. M. Kennedy from Pensacola to New York, a distance of 1,545 miles, which was finished Tuesday of last week. The trip was made by Dr. Kennedy in his car of the toy tonneau type, with only his chauffeur so far as Salem, Va., where his wife and son joined him. From Atlanta he followed the New York Herald-Atlanta Journal route, having taken the "ride route" as far as Atlanta. No trouble was experienced en route and the car arrived "with Pensacola air in the tires," as the Doctor expressed it. This fact he attributes to the good condition of the roads and the strength of his car. Many tourists are likely to try this route in the future. Such a trip stirs up the interest in good roads.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

DRUNKEN NEGRO IS KILLED BY ENGINE

USED SUIT CASE FOR PILLOW
AND R. R. TRACK FOR BED.

Accident Occurred Near White House,
Between Jacksonville and Baldwin, Saturday Night.

JACKSONVILLE, Oct. 18.—Falling asleep in a drunken stupor with a suit case for a pillow and the railroad track for a bed, Harry Senior, a negro, was run over and killed by a Seaboard Air Line passenger train late Saturday afternoon, a short distance from the Whitehouse station, between Jacksonville and Baldwin. His body was picked up by trainmen and brought to the city. A coroner's jury will investigate the case. The jury viewed the body Saturday and will meet again on Tuesday at noon to hear further evidence and render a verdict.

Senior, along with a colored woman, had been in Jacksonville Saturday, and was en route to his home, about two miles from Whitehouse, when the accident happened. According to the story as it was brought to Justice Willard, Senior had been drinking heavily and was carrying a suit case. He left Jacksonville on the evening train and got off at Whitehouse.

Lay Down on Track.

After the train had puffed on its way Senior, with the woman, started to walk along the track to take a short cut to his home. The woman walked ahead, and for some reason soon left Senior behind. Growing sleepy, it is supposed, from the effect of the liquor which he had drunk, he lay down upon the track with the suit case as a pillow, forgetting the danger. The evening passenger train en route from Baldwin struck Senior, and he was horribly mangled. The body was sent to Whitehouse for burial.

Trainmen did not notice the reclining form of the man on the track until it was too late to stop the train. As it was the train stopped within a few feet after the body was struck, and the remains of the dead man were brought to the city.

UNION WAS REORGANIZED.

Planning Great Work for the Coming Winter Season.

The Junior Union of the Baptist church was reorganized on Sunday afternoon, when much interest and renewed energy was shown, and the same starts off with a membership of some forty-seven under the most favorable auspices.

The superintendent and children are planning great work for the winter and hope to have all of the old members again with them, as well as a great many new ones, to be enrolled by next Sunday.

An election of officers resulted as follows: Yeteva Rogers, president; Chas. Holstein, vice-president; Esther Smith, secretary; Malba Rogers, treasurer; Leon Rivers, birthday chaplain. H. R. Wilburn was selected superintendent for the coming year, and the Junior is anticipating fine work for the coming winter under such splendid leaders to direct them.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING AT COURT HOUSE

CONGRESSMAN CLARK WILL BE ONE OF SPEAKERS.

Anyone interested in the Present Campaign Urgently Requested to Attend This Rally.

The ladies of this city representing the Alachua County School Improvement Association have called a meeting for tonight at the court house when a large attendance is expected by all who are interested in the most worthy cause.

Mrs. Futch, Mrs. Rogers and others are canvassing among the citizens and are met with much encouragement. On this occasion when they are assembled together it can better be seen just how much has been accomplished even in this short space of time.

There never was any one question started in Gainesville that met with such hearty approval as the matter of education, and the ladies have now interested themselves to such an extent as to get out and canvass to make stronger than it really would have been.

They have secured the services of Congressman Frank Clark for this evening and will follow the distinguished Congressman and lay the plans and the work before the people more fully.

The meeting has been called for 8 o'clock and the large court room of the court house will be lighted and ready, when a hearty welcome awaits all that are at all interested in this most important question.

REGULAR SESSION
HERE IN DECEMBER

U. S. COURT MAY BE DELAYED FOR SHORT WHILE.

Coming Session Will Last Two Weeks or More With the Present Docket.

The next regular session of the United States Court for this district will be held in this city during December, so the reporter was informed Monday by District Attorney Fred Cubberly.

He states that the coming session will be a busy one and that it will require two weeks or more to complete the business that is already before the body, in the event that nothing else is brought up between now and that time.

The coming session may be delayed owing to the fact that the Federal building at Pensacola is torn to pieces, and this will delay the session there, which will necessarily delay the time for convening in Gainesville.

The establishment of this court in this city will mean a great thing for Gainesville when it has become fully established, and after they will have entered their own building now under construction. Although only one session of this court has been held here since it was organized, it was easily seen the good effects that it would have upon the business men, for a large amount of money was paid out to witnesses and jurors, besides it attracted a great number of strangers to the city.

AUTOISTS CALLED TO MEET TONIGHT

MEETING WILL BE HELD IN THE COUNCIL ROOMS.

Others Interested in Good Roads and Their Advancement Are Urged to Be Present.

Every owner and driver of an automobile is urged to attend the meeting called for the council rooms this evening at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of forming themselves into a club.

This call is published at the suggestion of H. E. Taylor, Judge Syd L. Carter, A. M. Cushman, and other interested and enthusiastic automobile owners who are desirous of bettering the roads and thoroughfares of Alachua county.

Steps will also be taken concerning some of the long distance roads, and the matter of a roadway between Jacksonville and this city will be discussed by a gentleman who is thoroughly familiar with the subject.

The initial meeting tonight will be to form themselves into an automobile association, and later they will adopt a set of by-laws which will govern them, and map out a campaign that will be made for better roads not only in the county but throughout the State.

Parties interested in the work are requested to attend the meeting tonight, and it is hoped that the autoists of Gainesville will come out in full force.

In Less Than Three Years, Parisian Sage, the Splendid Hair Tonic, Is Sold All Over America.

There is a reason for the phenomenal sale of Parisian Sage in the United States during the past three years.

And the reason is plain to all: Parisian Sage does just what it is advertised to do.

Ask W. M. Johnson about it; he will tell you that he rightly guarantees it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

There is no reason whatever why any man or woman should fail to take advantage of the above generous offer.

I have used other preparations but Parisian Sage cleaned the scalp, stopped all irritation, made my hair fluffy, silky and left no trace of stickiness as some other hair tonics had."—Mrs. Sarah Sanderhoff, 1463 N. Alderman E. J. Mills of Daytona says when he goes to the Legislature he is going to introduce a bill requiring all cows loitering on the Daytona-New Smyrna road to carry red lights in order that automobilists may distinguish them after dark.

The DeLand News says many of Hon. Jim Alexander's friends are urging him to enter the race for Congress. It's dollars to doughnuts that Jim will not make the race next year. Like his friend Broward, he has had his "fill" of meeting Frank Clark on the stump.

Henry T. Hopkins was convicted of manslaughter at the recent term of court in Dade county for killing two men in North Miami in May, 1908, and sentenced to one day's imprisonment in the county jail. The jury recommended that he be given the minimum sentence, and Judge Minor S. Jones said that he should either have been convicted of murder or acquitted as acting in self-defense. Juries certainly render some strange verdicts.

If the members of the City Council of Gainesville desire to do something beneficial for the youth of the place they could not do it more effectively than by emulating the example of the Orlando city dadas and pass an ordinance prohibiting the selling or giving away of cigarettes or cigarette paper to any minor, or the procuring of same for minors. We will be pleased to furnish a copy of this ordinance to the councilman who will introduce it.

Hon. Ion Farris of Jacksonville has announced that he will take the field against Frank Clark. This makes about three who think they can walk all around the present Congressman and still Frank is not worrying any. And why should he? His constituents are well satisfied with his stewardship and are not desirous of any changes. Frank Clark is good enough for the voters and they will demonstrate it when election day rolls around.—Sanford Herald.

Miss Irene McCreary, who has been confined to her bed for the past two weeks with a severe attack of tonsillitis, has sufficiently recovered to resume her work on the State news department of this paper. Her suffering was intense for several days, the complaint verging on diphtheria at one time, but the careful attention of Dr. J. F. McKinstry, Jr., (who with his good wife love our children as if they were their own) has brought her safely through the painful sickness.

If the manufacture and importation of toys are to be taken as an indication there is abundant evidence of increase in prosperity among the masses in the United States in recent years. During the past ten years $50,000,000 worth of toys has been imported and $5,000,000 worth exported by our people. The high mark in the export of this class of American manufacture was reached in the last fiscal year, the total value being for the first time $1,000,000. On the import side the high mark was reached in 1908, when the value of toys imported was $7,500,000.

THE FIXING OF A POLICY.

The fixing of a definite policy is the one absolutely essential requisite to successful undertaking and completion of any work and especially so with any work undertaken by public authority. It was only by the fixing of a definite policy by the Government of the United States that the continent was spanned and the East and the West brought together by the completion of the Pacific railway. The Pacific railway had been the dream of years—and it would have been a dream today if it had not been for the fixing of an intelligent policy with appropriate legislation insuring the beginning, the carrying on and the completion of the work.

The continent is now spanned with rails and reaching all points—when there comes a season of dullness, and only reaching points is in keeping with the tremendous advance of commercial, mining, industrial and agricultural interests. That advance is the normal condition of the country is a self evident proposition, with another accompanying it—the self evident proposition that means of transportation—the key to progress and advance—is wholly inadequate.

The country is growing too fast to avoid car shortages—but it is not growing fast enough to enable it to bear the great losses which comes to all conditions of trade and commerce because of inadequacy of means of communication between shipper and receiver, an inadequacy which makes it plain that it is not Jones, the shipper, who pays the freight, but the consumer of the articles shipped.

The South—the progressive and the New South—so vitally interested in the question of transportation and interested, perhaps, more than any other section of the country, in the completion of the Panama canal, recalls also the fact that the canal had its origin in the dreams of the Spanish monarchy more than two centuries ago. The dream continued until States awoke to the fact that the work was purely and wholly a work for this Government to undertake alone, with the Hay-Pauncefote treaty forever settling the question of ownership and control in the United States. That step was followed by the course which the Government of the United States should adopt with reference to inland waterway improvement—the establishment of a fixed and definite policy such as was adopted with reference to the canal and under which the great work is so rapidly progressing and certain, in its completion, to add immeasurably to the foreign trade and commerce of the country. Yet that trade and commerce, great though it is and will be, is comparatively insignificant when compared with the inland trade and commerce of the country now so badly hampered and impeded in its development because of lack of means of transportation between shipper and receiver.

The National Rivers and Harbors Congress, whose program is: "A Policy; not a Project"—and whose work has brought so vividly to the attention of Congress and the shipping and receiving public the necessity for the adoption of a fixed policy of waterway improvement—will hold its sixth annual convention at the New Willard, Washington, D. C., on December 8, 9 and 10, coincident with the assembling of the Sixty-first Congress, and not one of the vast interests of this section of the United States should be unrepresented. The question involved is one of the first importance; the delegates to the congress will be most thoroughly representative men and of its influence upon the Congress of the United States there can be no doubt—and there should be none.

The Jacksonville Board of Trade having repudiated the advertising bills of the Midwinter Exposition of last season, for which enterprise said Board of Trade stood sponsor, the managers of the coming Military Carnival in that city are getting it "where the chicken got the ax" in their requests to newspapers for the insertion of advertising matter of the approaching festivities. It is safe to say that not a newspaper in Florida would have run the advertisement of the Midwinter Exposition had not the enterprise been endorsed and backed by the Jacksonville Board of Trade. So far as The Sun is concerned it will never again have as good an opinion of some Jacksonville business men as it had prior to this transaction.

The National Municipal League has established an annual prize of $100 to be called the William H. Baldwin prize, to be given to the author of the best essay on a subject connected with municipal government. For the year 1909-10 the competition will be limited to undergraduate students registered in a regular course in any college or university of the United States offering distinct instruction in municipal government. The prize will be awarded by judges selected by the executive committee of the league, and the name of the winner will be announced at the next following annual meeting. The executive committee of the league, and the name of the winner, will be announced at the next following meeting. The executive committee of the league, acting in co-operation with the committee on the co-operation of university and collegiate instruction in municipal government, has selected as the topic for next year's competition, "City Government by Commission." Prof William Bennett Munro of Harvard, chairman of the committee, announces that he is prepared to give full information to competitors.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of soil—sunshine—and of atmosphere—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth?

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart. You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and washing in vasoline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out. Newb's Herpicide destroys the germ, and healthy hair is the sure result.

Sold by leading druggists. Send for stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., 2 E. Bodiford & Co., Special Agents.

THE RUBBER TRUST OUTGENERALS COMPETITOR.

GALVESTON, Oct. 18.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is the controlling spirit in a company which has acquired about 65 per cent of the guayule fields of Mexico, and is negotiating for the remaining interests, which would make the Rockefeller interests own more than three million acres of the best guayule lands in Mexico. The guayule industry is less than four years old, and its promoters had planned to buck the rubber trust with the fine quality of rubber produced from this plant. They had entered into a compact not to part with their holdings, but Rockefeller agents managed to lease the lands until it has now been discovered that representatives of the United States Rubber Trust control the guayule production.

I am in the race until the polls close on the day of the election, and respectfully solicit the votes of my fellow-citizens, promising, if elected, to perform the duties of the office without fear or favor. Give me your support, and you will never have cause to regret it. CHAS. M. DELL.

Delicious Doughnuts.

If you like crisp, flaky doughnuts, richly browned, and yet with not a suspicion of greasiness, try the following recipe by Mrs. Mary J. Lincoln:

Beat one cup sugar and two eggs very light, add one teaspoon melted lard, one cup sour milk, and one-fourth level teaspoon each of cinnamon and salt. Mix one-half level teaspoon soda and one scant teaspoon of baking powder with one cup flour, stir it in and add more flour till stiff enough to roll out. Have as soft as possible to roll, one-third inch thick. Cut into rings and cook in hot, deep lard. The fat should be hot enough for the dough to rise to the top immediately.

Doughnuts fried in lard are like lead on the stomach; lard is indigestible. Codolene, on the contrary, makes food that even an infant can digest with ease.

THE CONQUEST OF THE POLE

By Dr. FREDERICK A. COOK

Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Company, Registered in Canada in Accordance With Copyright Act. Copyright in Mexico Under Laws of the Republic of Mexico. All Rights Reserved.

[The Cook expedition was equipped at Gloucester, Mass., and was ready to start on July 3, 1907. Dr. Cook and Rudolph Franke were put ashore at Annotok, Greenland, with ample stores and during the winter made preparations for the polar dash. On Feb. 19, 1908, the main expedition started for the pole with eleven men, 103 dogs and eleven heavily loaded sleds. Going a little north of west, the party on March 15 reached the northern end of Heiberg Island. Here the expedition divided, six men returning. The real race to the pole now began. On March 18 twenty-six miles were made and the next day twenty-one. Then two more of the men returned, leaving only two young Eskimos to accompany Dr. Cook, with two loaded sledges and twenty-six dogs. On March 20 sixteen miles were covered, twenty-nine miles on the 21st, twenty-two the following day and afterward for several days an average of seventeen or eighteen. Near the northern edge of Grant Land a great open lead was encountered, which was crossed with some peril on the young ice. Some days later after a severe storm the ice split open under the igloo, and Dr. Cook in his sleeping bag sank into the crevice, being dragged to safety by the young Eskimos. The advance was halted by storms, in one of which the dogs were buried and in another the men themselves. To the west a new land, named Bradley Land by Cook, was sighted, extending from 83 degrees 20 minutes to 83 degrees 51 minutes and close to the one hundred and second meridian. Dr. Cook's own account of his dash from Bradley Land to the pole is given below.]

OVER the newly discovered coast lines was written Bradley Land in honor of John R. Bradley, the benefactor of the expedition. As we passed north of this land there was nothing substantial upon which to fix the eye.

There was at no time a perfectly clear horizon, but the weather was good enough to permit frequent nautical observations.

Thus day after day the marches were forced, the incidents and the positions were recorded, but the adventures were promptly forgotten in the mental blank of the next day's effort. The night of April 7 was made notable by the swing of the sun at midnight. For a number of nights it made grim faces at us in its setting. A tensing mist, drawn as a curtain over the northern sea at midnight, had given curious advantages for celestial staging; setting into this haze, we were unable to determine sharply the advent of the midnight sun.

Now the great bulk was drawn out egg shaped, with horizontal lines drawn through it. Again it was pressed into a basin with flaming fires, burning behind a curtain of frosts; blue at other times, it appeared like a huge vase, and it required very little imagination to see purple and violet flowers.

The change was often like magic, but the last display was invariably a face—distorted faces of men or animals were made to suit our fancy.

We had therefore followed the sun's northward advance—from its first peep at midday above the south ice of the polar gateway to its sweep of the northern ice at midnight. From the end of the polar night late in February to the first of the double days and midnight suns we had forced a trail through darkness, blood hardening temperature and over leg breaking irregularities of an unknown world of ice to an area 200 miles from the pole.

Now we had the sun unmistakably at midnight, and its new glory was quite an incentive to our life of shivers. Observations on April 8 placed camp at latitude 86 degrees 36 minutes, longitude 94 degrees 2 minutes. In spite of what seemed like long marches we had advanced only 100 miles in nine days. Much of our hard work was lost in circuitous twists around troublesome pressure lines and high, irregular fields of very old ice. The drift ice was throwing us to the east with sufficient force to give us some anxiety, but with eyes closed to danger and hardships the double days of fatigue and glitter quickly followed one another.

The temperature, ranging between 30 and 40 degrees below zero F., kept persistently near the freezing point of mercury, and, though the perpetual sun gave light and color to the cheerless wastes, we were not impressed with any appreciable sense of warmth. Indeed, the sunbeams seemed to make the frost of the air pierce with a more painful sting.

There was a weird play of orgies, seemingly most impressive at this time—clouds of steam rose from the frozen seas. In marching over the golden glitter snow scalds the face, while the nose is bleached with frost.

In camp a grip of the knife left painful burns from cold metal. To the frozen finger the water was hot. With wine spirits the fire was lighted, while oil delighted the stomach. In dreams heaven was hot, the other place was cold.

All nature was false. We seemed to be nearing the chilled flame of a new hades. In our hard life there was nothing genuinely warm. The congenial appearances were all deception, but death offered only cold comfort. There was no advantage in suicide.

We should have enjoyed this curious experience, but with endless bodily discomforts, combined in aching muscles and an overbearing languor, there could be no real joys from the glories of nature. The pleasure was reserved for a later retrospect.

We now changed our working hours from day to night, beginning usually at 10 and ending at 7. The big marches and prolonged hours of travel with which fortune favored us earlier were no longer possible. Weather conditions were more important in determining the day's run than the hands of the chronometers.

When the storms threatened the start was delayed, and in strong blows the march was shortened, but in one way or another we usually found a few hours in each turn of the dial during which a march could be forced between winds. It mattered little whether we traveled night or day—all hours and all days were alike to us—for we had no accustomed time of rest, no Sundays, no holiday, no landmarks or mileposts to pass. To advance and expend the energy accumulated during one sleep at the cost of our pound of pemmican was the one sole aim in life.

The observations of April 11 gave latitude 87 degrees 20 minutes, longitude 95 minutes 19 seconds. The pack disturbance of Bradley Land was less and less noted in the northward movement. The fields became heavier, larger and less crevassed.

We had now passed the highest reaches of all our predecessors and had gained the inspiration of the farthest north for ourselves. The time was at hand, however, to consider seriously the necessity of an early return.

Nearly half of the food allowance had been used. In the long marches supplies had been more liberally used than anticipated, and now our dog teams were much reduced in numbers. A hard necessity had forced the cruel law of the survival of the fittest, for the less useful dogs were fed to the steady working survivors. Owing to the food limits and the advancing season we could not prudently continue the outward march a fortnight longer.

We had dragged ourselves 300 miles over the polar sea in twenty-four days, including delays and detours, this gave an average of nearly thirteen miles daily on an air line in our course. There remained an unknown line of 100 miles before our ambitions could be satisfied. The same average advance which we had made on the pack would take us to the pole in thirteen days. There were food and fuel enough to risk this adventure.

In the diary of the succeeding days' doings there appear numerous tabulations of work and observations. In the new cracks the thickness of the ice was measured. The water was examined for life. Atmospheric, surface water and ice temperatures were taken, the barometer was noted, the cloud formations, weather conditions and ice drifts were tabulated.

I watched daily for possible signs

Women Suffer Agonies from Diseased Kidneys

And Most Women Do This Not Knowing the Real Cause of their Condition

These poor, suffering women have been led to believe that their misery of mind and body is entirely due to "ills of their sex." Usually the kidneys and bladder are responsible—or largely so. And in such cases, the kidneys and bladder are the organs, that need and must have attention.

Those torturing, enervating sick headaches, dragging pains in back, groin and limbs, bloating and swelling of the extremities, extreme nervousness or hysteria, listlessness and constant tired, worn-out feelings—are almost certain symptoms of disordered and diseased kidneys, bladder and liver.

DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills have, in thousands of cases, been demonstrated as remarkably beneficial in all such conditions of female organism—affording the most prompt relief and permanent benefit.

As an illustration of what these Pills will do, Mrs. P. M. Bray of Columbus, Ga., writes that she was very ill with kidney trouble, and that she is now well—and that these Pills are what cured her.

They are very pleasant to take, and can in no case, produce any deleterious effects upon the system—as syrupy, alcoholic, liquid preparations are apt to do.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill., want every man and woman who have the least suspicion that they are afflicted with kidney and bladder diseases to at once write them, and a trial box of these Pills will be sent free by return mail post-paid. Do it to-day.

BUCHANAN FOUND DEAD IN LONDON

ONE OF THE LEADING DIPLOMATS OF UNITED STATES.

Found Unconscious Near American Embassy and Died Before Medical Aid Could Be Rendered.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—William I. Buchanan of Buffalo, N. Y., who has been in Europe for some time in connection with an important diplomatic mission for the State Department at Washington, was found in an unconscious condition near the American embassy early yesterday morning, and died before medical aid could be rendered.

NEWS A SHOCK AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—News of the death of Mr. Buchanan came as a great shock to his many friends in official Washington. Since President Cleveland's last administration Mr. Buchanan has, with very short intervals of intermission, been connected with the Department of State in some of the most important diplomatic work that has engaged the attention of the department, and the uniform success that has attended his undertakings and his fine personality have caused him to be regarded as one of the most successful diplomatists.

He was remarkably successful in his relations with the Latin-American people, not only because of his complete mastery of the Spanish language, but also because of his ability to enter into the peculiar mental processes of the South and Central American people.

Mr. Buchanan was born in Covington, Ohio, September 10, 1853.

Appointed by Cleveland.

Mr. Buchanan was appointed United States minister to the Argentine republic by President Cleveland in 1894. He devoted himself to extending and improving American trade with South America generally, and with the Argentine republic especially.

Although a Democrat, Mr. Buchanan was retained at his post for several years after the retirement of President Cleveland.

Scarcely had he finished his service as a delegate to the second Pan-American conference, held in the City of Mexico in 1902, before he was again drafted into the diplomatic service, to become the first United States minister to Panama.

dangerous failure in strength, for his disability now meant a fatal situation.

A disabled man could neither continue nor return, but every examination gave another reason to push but endurance to the limit of the fiber of every fiber and cell. The work which followed, under an unusual burst of burning sunbeams, brought intense thirst.

During the habit of the camel, we began to take enough water before trying to keep sufficient liquid in the body for the day's march, but it was difficult to wait the melting of the ice during the time.

Two sittings—morning and evening—each took an average of three quarts of water daily. This included tea and also the luxury of an occasional soup. There was water about everywhere in heaps, but it was in stalactites, and before the thirst could be quenched several ounces of pressure fuel, which had been carried thousands of miles, must be used. And this water, so expensive and so necessary to us, ultimately became the greatest bane to comfort. It escaped through the pores of the skin, saturated the boots, forced a band of ice under the knee and a belt of frost about the waist, while the face was early always incased in a mask of ice from the breath—a necessary part of our hard lot in life, and we turned to take the torture philosophically.

From the eighty-seventh to the eighty-eighth parallel we passed for days over old ice without pressure or hummocks. There was no discernible line of demarcation for the ice, and it was quite impossible to determine if we were on land or sea.

The barometer indicated no elevation, but the ice had the hard, waving surface of glacial ice, with only superficial crevasses. The water obtained from this was not salty, but all of the upper surface of the ice of the polar sea makes similar water. The actual observations did not seem to indicate a drift, but nevertheless the combined tabulations do not warrant the positive assertion of either land or sea for this area.

The ice gave a cheering prospect. A halo of purple and blue ran in easy undulations to the limits of vision.

Without the usual barriers of uplifted blocks, there is a direct air line course possible. Progress, however, was as difficult as over the irregular ice. The snow was crusted with large crystals. An increased friction made the sleds, while the surface, so hard for snowshoes, was also too hard to give a secure footing. The monotony, the hardship, the steady, unrelieved travel were now keenly felt.

It is not often that man's horsepower is put to the test as ours was. We are compelled to develop a working energy to the limit of animal capacity. After day we had pushed along the same steady pace over plains of ice and through a mental desert.

As the ice opened at the end of an

Final Dash For the Pole. The "Big Nail" Reached at Last and "Old Glory" Unfurled—Endless Fields of Purple Snows—No North, No East, No West

ley slumber the fire was lighted little by little, the stomach was filled with liquids and solids, mostly cold—enough to last for the day, for there could be no halt or waste of fuel for midday feeding. We next got into harness and paced off the day's pull under the lash of duty. We worked until standing became impossible—longer in light winds, shorter in strong winds, but at ways until the feet became numb and heavy.

Then came the arduous task of building a snow horse. In this the eyes, no longer able to wink, closed, but soon the empty stomach complained, and it was filled up again—not with things that pleased the palate, only hard fuel to feed the inner fires, while the ear sought the soft side of ice to dispel fatigue; no pleasure in mental recreation, nothing to arouse the soul from its icy inclosure.

To eat, to sleep, to press one foot ahead of the other, was our steady vocation, like the horse to the cart, but we had not his advantage of an agreeable climate and a comfortable stable at night.

Words and pictures cannot adequately describe the maddening influence of this sameness of polar glitter, combined with bitter winds, extreme cold and an overworked body. To me there was always the inspiration of anticipation of the outcome of ultimate success, but for my young savage companions it was a torment almost beyond endurance. Their weariness was made evident by a lax use of the whip and an indifferent urging of the dogs. They were, however, brave and faithful to the bitter end, seldom allowing selfish ambitions or uncontrollable passions seriously to interfere with the main effort of the expedition.

On the morning of April 13 a strain of agitating torment reached a breaking point. For days there had been a steady cutting wind from the west, which drove despair to its lowest reaches.

No torment could be worse than that never ceasing rush of icy air. Ahwelah bent over his sled and refused to move.

His dogs turned and looked in quivering. I walked over and stood by his side. Etukishuk came near and stood motionless, staring blankly at the southern skies. Large tears fell from Ahwelah's eyes and piled a little frost of sadness in the blue of his own shadow for several minutes. Not a word was uttered, but I knew that each felt that the time had come to free the fetters of human passions. Slowly Ahwelah said, "Unne sinig pa—oo-ah-tonie-l-o-doria" ("It is well to die—beyond is impossible").

THE observations of April 14 gave latitude 88 degrees 21 minutes, longitude 95 degrees 52 minutes. We were but 100 miles from the pole, but there was nothing to relieve the mental strain of the icy despair. The wind came with the same satanic cut from the west. There had been little drift, but the ice before us displayed signs of recent activity. It was more irregular, with an open crack here and there, but the sleds glided with less friction, and the dreary dogs maintained a better speed under rising tails.

With teeth set and newly sharpened resolutions, we set out for that last 100 miles. Some dogs had gone into the stomachs of their hungry companions, but there still remained a sufficient pull of well tried brute force for each sled, and, though their noisy vigor had been lost in the long drag, they still broke the frigid silence with an occasional outburst. A little fresh enthusiasm from the drivers was quickly followed by canine activity.

We were in good trim to cover distance economically. The sledges were light; our bodies were thin. All the muscles had shriveled, but the dogs retained much of their strength. Thus stripped for the last lap, one horizon after another was lifted.

In the forced effort which followed we were frequently overheated. The temperature was steady at 41 degrees below zero F., but perspiration came with ease and a certain amount of pleasure. Later, however, there followed a train of suffering for many days. The delight of the birdskin shirt was changed for the chill of the wet blanket.

Fortunately, at this time the sun was warm enough to dry the furs in about three days if flashed to the sunny side of the sled. In these last days we felt more keenly the pangs of perspiration than in all our earlier adventures.

The amber colored goggles were persistently used, and they afforded a protection to the eyes which was quite a revelation, but in spite of every precaution our distorted, frozen, burned and withered faces lined a map of the hardships en route.

We were curious looking savages. The perpetual glitter induced a squint which distorted the face in a remarkable manner. The strong light reflected from the crystal surface threw the muscles about the eye into a state of chronic contraction. The pupil was reduced to a mere pinhole.

There was no end of trouble at hand in endeavoring to keep the windows of the soul open, and all of the effect was run together in a set expression of hardship and wrinkles which should be called the boreal squint.

This boreal squint is a part of the russet bronze physiognomy which falls to the lot of every arctic explorer. The early winds, with a piercing temperature, start a flush of scarlet, while frequent frostbites leave figures in black. Later the burning sun browns the skin; subsequently strong winds sop the moisture, harden the skin and leave open fissures.

The hard work and reduced nourishment contract the muscles, dispel the fat and leave the skin to shrivel up in folds. The imprint of the goggles, the set expression of hard lines and the mental blank of the environment have removed all spiritual animation. We have the color and the lines of old russet apples and would easily pass for prehistoric progenitors of man.

In the enforced effort to spread out the stiffened legs over the last reaches there was no longer sufficient energy at camping times to erect a snow shelter. The silk tent was pressed into use. Though the temperature was very low when the sun was high, its congenial rays pierced the silk fabric and rested softly on our brows closed in heavy slumber. In strong winds it was still necessary to erect a sheltering wall to shield the tent.

Signs of land were still seen every day, but they were deceptive optical illusions and a mere verdict of fancy. It seemed that something must happen, some line must cross our horizon, to mark the important area into which we were pressing.

When the sun was low the eye ran over moving plains in brilliant waves of color to dancing horizons. The mirages turned things topsy turvy, inverted lands and queer objects ever rose and fell in shrouds of mystery, but all of this was due to the atmospheric magic of the midnight sun.

With a lucky series of daily astronomical observations our position was now accurately fixed for each stage of progress. As we neared the pole the imagination quickened, and a restless, almost hysterical excitement came over us. The boys fancied they saw beaver and seals, and I had a new land under observation frequently, but with a change in the direction of light or an altered trend in our temperament the horizon cleared and we became eager only to push farther into the mystery.

From the eighty-eighth to the eighty-ninth the ice was in very large fields and the surface was less irregular, but in other respects it was about the same as below the eighty-seventh. We noticed here also an extension of the range of vision. We seemed to see longer distances and the ice along the horizon had a less angular outline.

The color of the sky and the ice also changed to deeper purple blues. We had no way of checking these impressions by other observations. The eagerness to find something unusual may have fired the imagination, but since the earth is flattened at the pole perhaps a widened horizon should be detected.

At 8 o'clock on the morning of April 19 we camped on a picturesque old field with convenient hummocks, to which we could easily rise for the frequent outlook which we now maintained. The tent was pitched. The dogs were silenced by blocks of pemmican. In us new enthusiasm was aroused by a liberal pot of pea soup and a few chips of frozen meat, and then we bathed in life giving sunbeams, screened from the piercing air by silk strands. It was a beautiful day, and had our sense of appreciation not been blunted by accumulated fatigue we would have greatly enjoyed the play of light and color in the ever changing scene of sparkle.

The Eskimos were soon lost in a profound sleep, the only comfort in their hard lives, but I remained awake, as had been my habit on succeeding days, to get nautical observations. The longitude calculations lined us at 94 degrees 3 minutes. At noon the sun's altitude was carefully set on the sextant, and the latitude quickly reduced gave 89 degrees 31 minutes—twenty-nine miles from the pole.

My heart jumped for joy, and the unconscious commoner which I was creating awakened Etukishuk. I told him that in two average marches we would reach the "big nail" (the big nail).

Ahwehah was awakened with a kick, and together they went out to a hummock and through glasses sought for a mark to locate so important a place as the terrestrial axis. If but one sleep beyond it must be seen.

I tried to explain that the pole was not visible to the eye; that its position was located only by a repeated use of the various instruments. This entirely satisfied their curiosity, and they burst out in hurrahs of joy. For two hours they chanted and danced the passions of wild life.

It was the first real sign of pleasure or rational emotion which they had shown for several weeks. For some time I had entertained the fear that we no longer possessed the strength to return to land, but the unbridled joy of vigor dispelled that idea.

More sleep was quite impossible. We brewed an extra pot of tea, prepared a favorite broth of pemmican, dug up a surprise of fancy biscuits and filled up on good things to the limit of the allowance for our final feast days. The dogs, which had joined the chorus of gladness, were given an extra lump of pemmican. A few hours more were agreeably spent in the tent, and then we started with a new spirit for the uttermost north.

We were excited to a fever heat. The feet were light on this run. Even the dogs caught the infectious enthusiasm and rushed along at a pace which made it difficult for me to keep a sufficient advance to set a good course. The horizon was still searched for something to mark the approaching boreal center, but nothing unusual was seen. It was the same expanse of moving seas of ice on which we had lived for 500 miles.

But, looking through gladdened eyes, the scene assumed a new glory. There were plains of gold fenced in purple walls, with gilded crests. It was one of the few days on the stormy pack when all nature smiled with cheering lights.

As the day advanced and the splendor of summer night was run into the continued day the beams of gold on the surface snows thickened, while the shadows of hummocks and ridges spread a line of violet barriers through which a way must be sought.

From my position a few hundred yards ahead of the sleds I could not resist the temptation to turn frequently to see the movement of the dog train with its new fire. In this direction the color scheme was reversed. The icy walls were in gold and burning colors, while the plains represented every shade of purple and blue.

Through this sea of color the dogs came with a spirited tread, noses down, tails up and shoulders braced to the straps like chariot horses. The young Eskimos, chanting songs of love, came with easy step. The long whip was swung with a brisk crack, and all over there rose a cloud of frosted breath.

Camp was pitched early in the morning of April 20. The sun was north-east; the park glowed in tones of blue; the normal westerly air of shivers brushed our frosty faces. The surprising burst of enthusiasm had been turned to its limit, and under it a long march was made over average ice with the usual result of overbearing fatigue. Too tired and sleepy to wait for a cup of tea, melted snows were poured down, and the pemmican was pounded with the ice to ease the task of the jaws. The eyes closed before the meal was finished, and the world was lost to us for eight hours. The observation gave latitude 89 degrees 46.5 minutes, longitude 94 degrees 52 minutes.

With the boys singing and the dogs howling we started off after midnight on April 21. The dogs looked large and noble as they came along that day, while Etukishuk and Ahwehah, though thin and ragged, had a dignity as heroes of the greatest human battle which had ever been fought with remarkable success.

We were all lifted to the paradise of winners as we stepped over the snows of a destiny for which we had risked life and willingly suffered the tortures of an icy hell.

The ice under us seemed almost sacred. When the pedometer registered fourteen and a half miles we camped, and calmly went to sleep, feeling that we were turning on the earth's axis.

The observations, however, gave 89 degrees 59 minutes 45 seconds. We therefore had the pole, or the exact spot where it should be, within sight.

We advanced the fifteen seconds, made supplementary observations, pitched the tent, built a snow igloo and prepared to make ourselves comfortable for a stay long enough for two rounds of observations.

Our position was thus doubly assured, and a necessary day of rest was gained. Etukishuk and Ahwehah enjoyed the day in quiet repose, but I slept very little. My goal was reached; the ambition of my life had been fulfilled. How could I sleep away such overwhelming moments of elation?

At last we had reached the boreal center. The dream of nations had been realized. The race of centuries was ours. The flag was planted to the coveted pole. The year was 1908, the day April 21.

The sun indicated local noon, but time was a negative problem, for here all meridians meet. With a step it was possible to go from one part of the globe to the opposite side—from the hour of midnight to that of midday. Here there are but one day and one night in each year. The latitude was 90 degrees, the temperature —88.7, the atmospheric pressure 25.83. North, east and west had vanished. It was south in every direction, but the compass, pointing to the magnetic pole, was as useful as ever.

Though overjoyed with the success of the conquest our spirits began to change on the next day after all the observations had been taken and the local conditions were studied. A sense of intense loneliness came with a careful scrutiny of the horizon. What a cheerless spot to have aroused the ambition of man for so many ages! Endless fields of purple snows! No life, no land, no spot, to relieve the monotony of frost! We were the only pulsating creatures in a dead world of ice.

On April 23, 1908, Dr. Cook began the long return march. With fair weather, good ice and the inspiration of the home run, long distances were at first quickly covered.

With a good deal of anxiety Cook watched the daily reduction of the food supply. It now became evident that the crucial stage of the campaign was to be transferred from the taking of the pole to a strict battle for life against fatigue and frost. Early in July fatigues and frost began to become insupportable, and in quietude Cook decided to turn back. The last of the march was made on April 24, 1908. The last of the march was made on April 24, 1908. The last of the march was made on April 24, 1908.
